

I oppose loosening the rules designed to promote and protect diversity of media ownership. These rules were adopted to ensure that the public would receive a diverse range of viewpoints from the media, and not simply the opinions of a handful of media conglomerates. The cable ownership cap is a crucial element of our democratic media, and it should not be weakened.

I encourage you to not only NOT loosen the cable ownership cap rules, but to make them even tougher. Even 30% ownership is way too much when a company is the size of AOL Time-Warner. They are taking over everything it seems, and I don't like the fact that one day I will be forced to get all of my services (cable, internet, phone) from one company without competition.
